King Barleycorn, carrying 111 pounds, was an added starter with Odion up at the last hour.

The track was in wreathed shape when the field went to the post. Ethelbert, Lethbridge, Lazarus, Streatham, Approved, Box and The Kentuckian were scratched.

Jean Beraud was also scratched at the last moment.

ETHELBERT WITHDRAWN.

As the afternoon wore on prospects for a good handicap did not look good. Then they broke at the sixteenth pole and cantered to the post. The field lined up and was away without an instant's delay. They were in perfect order, too, though there was a lot of crowding just after the start.

Going by the stand Knight of the Garter, Batten, King Barleycorn and Imp were racing heads apart in a beautiful bunch, and the crowd roared in approval.

Rounding the first turn King Barleycorn swung into the lead, drawing clear and third place by a head from Survivor, the pair being a scant length behind Raffaello. Batten was out on all the way and finished a bad last time, 219.

An hour before the Brooklyn Handicap was scheduled to come off a steady shower of rain was falling, much to the delight of those who favored the mud.

THE FINISH.

Jenkins was making his effort with Raffaello, and he and Kinley Mack drew away together. Raffaello was not equal to the task, however, and Kinley Mack held his advantage to the end.

This made the eighth withdrawal of the day, which reduced the original field to ten.
